

10 websites you can use to find a freelance job

Nobody likes working in the office. The routine schedule and the closed space adversely affect even those who like intensive work in a team. Constant chaos makes it difficult to concentrate and perform work efficiently. But what if you can change everything? Freelance websites offer many jobs and allow you to work without leaving home. Here are the top 10 websites to help you find a remote job.

Upwork

Many people have heard of Upwork. This is one of the most famous freelance platforms. This site has a simple and concise interface and a large international audience. Employers publish many orders for various professionals. Copywriters, web designers, programmers, SEO experts, illustrators, QA testers and others can get a job here.

Periodix.net

Periodix.net is the leader in modern freelancing industry. Smart algorithm based on artificial intelligence helps in finding suitable vacancies. Multidisciplinary specialists can create up to 5 profiles. The system allows you to determine the probability of receiving any thematic job. A large audience can count on getting a job quickly. The site will suit any category of users. UX designers, developers, copywriters, translators, testers and programmers will quickly find work here. It's a good place to get a freelancer jobs.

Fiverr

Fiverr is an international freelance system. Multidisciplinary job search system allows you to find a customer in a short period of time. Copywriters, web designers, programmers, SEO specialists, illustrators can count on a stable number of orders here.

99designs

99Designs is a freelance website that offers a convenient job search for designers, illustrators and artists. Employers see published portfolios and select the best authors for long-term collaboration. You can quickly find a job here or advertise your skills.

We Work Remotely

"We Work Remotely" is the dream of any freelancer. The service is easy to use and offers many vacancies. Many employers publish vacancies on the site. The site is suitable for representatives of any profession. The website can offer a lot of online freelance jobs options.

Dribbble

Dribbble is a specialized platform for designers, illustrators and creative people. This is a kind of social network with the possibility of publications. Freelancers can publish their best work to find loyal customers. The better the portfolio means the higher chance of getting a job.

Guru

The name speaks for itself. Guru is a service for IT professionals, designers, managers, copywriters and creative people. The website is focused on professionals and teamwork. This service is suitable for anyone looking for remote work and regular customers. Many professionals can get it freelance jobs here.

Craigslist

Craigslist is an ad service. Despite the archaic design, the website is very popular. Every freelancer or employer can post an ad. It helps to find the required specialists in a short period of time. It's a good place to get freelance jobs online.

Angellist

Do you have a startup or a visionary business plan? Then AngelList is what you are looking for. This is a simple and convenient platform for searching angels for investors and freelancers. Investors may notice your project if it has a potential growth prospect.

Behance

Behance is a creative portfolio publishing website. Designers, artists and illustrators can create their own profile for the publication of the best works. This system has proven its effectiveness by a large number of employers.